❖ The TEAM APPROACH

We believe that a team approach will ensure the highest level of success possible for each individual.

We work closely with the parents, school, therapists and caregivers to reach this goal.

Our team's credentials include:

- MS in Special Education
- Certified Associate Behavior Analyst
- BS in Psychology and other related fields
- 20+ years of experience in education including special needs classes
- 10+ years experience implementing behavior plans
- 20 years experience providing direct care, and managing group homes/caregiving services

We draw from our whole team to provide a high-quality, person-centered program for each individual!

Just a few of the MANY success stories ...

22 Year Old Young Lady with Down Syndrome is learning how to work in an office 5 days a week.

9th grader in an SLD (Specific Learning Disabled) class has mastered 300 sight words as well as addition & subtraction of fractions.

9th grader also in an SLD class has mastered 2-digit addition without regrouping.

5 year old boy with autism has mastered sorting non- identical items into categories, motor imitations, & labeling items. Last month he mastered identification of body parts, opposites & saying "yes" and "no" appropriately!

9 yr. old boy with a learning disability now raises his hand to read to the class!

Tristan and his mom, Kathy Clinton, co-founder, Executive Director

The founders of Hidden Potentials truly believe that every child deserves a fighting chance! As the parent of a special needs child, Kathy Clinton knew that she was ultimately responsible to see that her son, Tristan, who has autism, had the best opportunity to learn. Tremendous success was achieved in teaching Tristan academics, language, self-help, communication, and social skills. Because of the success of Tristan's program, Hidden Potentials was created and now offers in-home tutoring programs for special needs and regular education children using qualified, reputable facilitators. Services have expanded to now include caregiving for adults & children.

Hidden Potentials is an 11
year old, non-profit
