The Florida Trust for Historic Preservation is a non-profit organization of over 1600 members, and is the statewide partner to the National Trust for Historic Preservation. The Florida Trust was established in 1978 and since then has been the leader in the advocacy and education of preservationists around the state. Throughout the years, the Florida Trust has worked closely with the Florida Division of Historical Resources to keep abreast of the needs of the citizens of Florida for preservation programs and services.

The Annual Statewide Preservation Conference is held during the third full week in May and the location varies from year to year. The conference is an opportunity to showcase the host community's historic preservation success stories with workshops, tours and events. The conference targets professional preservationists, preservation activists, design review commission members, architects, planners, historic homeowners and many others from the cultural and historical fields.

The mission of the Florida Trust for Historic Preservation is to promote the preservation of Florida's unique cultural, historical and architectural resources.
